CONVICTED MAN TAKES STEP TO ESCAPE CHAIR

Motion for New Trial Filed by Attorney in Court Here

NO HEARING DATE SET

Will Carry Case Up If New Trial Is Not Granted

Colonel Herbert H. Lehman (above) who was chosen by Democrats to succeed James H. Jones as chairman of the national finance committee. He is considered an astute politician and a capable organizer.

Everett Koon, alias Cecil Dean, convicted of the murder of Henry Foss, made his first move to escape the consequences of the verdict today when his attorney, Homer E. Johnson, filed a motion in common pleas court for a new trial.

The motion was filed shortly after 10 o'clock this morning. The time allowed by law for filing the motion expired today. The verdict finding Koon guilty of murder in the first degree was returned by a jury in common pleas court at 5:30 o'clock last Wednesday afternoon. Three days are given attorneys in which to prepare their motions.

No date has been set by Judge George B. Seaford for hearing the motion.

Appeals Court May Be Next

One more avenue of escape from the electric chair remains open for Koon should the motion be overruled by Judge Seaford. The case can yet be appealed to the district court of appeals at Lima. Attorney Johnson has indicated that this move will be made in case a new trial is denied the prisoner here.

Twelve causes for granting the prisoner a new trial were cited in the motion. They revealed nothing that has not already been brought out in the trial.

The motion was based on the following causes:

1. Irregularity in the proceedings of the jury by which the defendant was prevented from having a fair trial.

2. The verdict of the jury was an erroneous conclusion from the facts in the case and the result of passion and prejudice against the defendant.

3. The verdict of the jury is not sustained by sufficient evidence.

4. The verdict of the jury is contrary to law.

5. The verdict of the jury is contrary to law.

COURT CHANGES DECISION OF MARION JUDGE

Action in Fining Mansfield Theater Manager for Contempt, Reversed

The action of Judge George B. Seaford, of the common pleas court here, in fining Tim Roberts, Mansfield theater manager, $25 for contempt of court for testimony given in the Edward F. Sharpless Sunday motion picture trial was reversed yesterday by the district court of appeals at Lima, according to a report received from that court today.

The report from the court stated that the action of the lower court was reversed because there was no evidence to sustain the charge. The action was reversed at the cost of the state.

Roberts was fined by Judge Seaford for testifying that he knew he was breaking the law in operating his shows on Sunday. Roberts was a defense witness in the second Sharpless trial held several weeks ago.

Immediately after the Sharpless case went to the jury Judge Seaford called Roberts before the bench and handed him the $25 fine for contempt. The fine was later appealed by Grant E. Mouser of the law firm of Mouser, Young & Mouser. The case was argued before the appeals court by Attorney Mouser last Monday.

RASKOB TO RESIGN FROM G. O. P. CLUB

Will Not Embarrass Organization, Democratic Leader Announces

Philadelphia, July 14—The turbulent creation among the members of the Union League Club of Philadelphia, a staid old organization whose members are the mainstay of Pennsylvania Republicanism, was somewhat relieved to day by the announcement that John J. Raskob, a member for the past 10 years who has gone over to the Democratic ranks, would resign from the club.

"I do not wish to embarrass the Union League and I shall be very glad to resign," Raskob said.

"When I became a member I let it be known that I voted for President Wilson," he said at his home in Centreville, Md. "I have never officially been affiliated with the Republicans or Democratic parties. I have always been independent in politics. Now, however, I see an opportunity of performing some constructive service by helping relieve the country of the damnable affliction of prohibition."

"How did she do it?" young ladies asked. "How did Helen of Troy do it? Cleopatra?"

Miss Joyce, it is said, has a certain dash and swing in a night club that identifies the atmosphere. There are many like ones in night clubs.

Federal reserve authorities with power unlimited, explaining that they wish to discourage speculation, put up the discount rate.

Little gamblers are discouraged for a while, the weakest are shaken out, then the speculation goes on.

Meanwhile the rate is up; the price of gold money reaches 8 per cent. And business men, borrowing at the bank at high collateral, are told that the bank is very sorry, but it is necessary to charge 6 per cent instead of 4% or 5 per cent "because rates are higher."

Very nice for those that lend money; not so nice for business men.

A man in Massachusetts put a silver plate on the front of his typewriter and a Smith plate at the rear. He is for Hoover; his wife is for Smith. The husband is happy because he is Hoover in front. The wife is satisfied because, she says, "Smith's name is the last thing they will see."

PERFECT SHOT

Akron, O., July 14—Gus Weller is near death here today from three bullet wounds received when he attempted to flee from officers who said they caught him peering in the window of a West Hill residence.

HALF MILLION ASKED BY CITY FOR NEXT YEAR

Total of $219,858.21 To Be Used for Payment of Debt

$281,325 FOR OPERATION

Amount Greater by Approximately $34,000 Than for This Year

The budget for conducting the affairs of the city in 1929, passed by city council at an adjourned meeting last night, provides for the expenditure of $219,858.21. Of this amount $219,858.21 will be used for the payment of interest and the retirement of bonds during the year, and with $3,500 subtracted for the item of indemnity fund, will leave a balance of $281,325.00 for the actual operating expenses of the city, which is greater by approximately $34,000 than for 1928.

Reduction 140%

Aside from the amount needed for retirement of bonds, the amount designated does not mean that the city will receive that much for operating expenses. After being passed by city council, the budget will be submitted to the county budget commission consisting of the county auditor, county treasurer and prosecuting attorney, who will appropriate the amount the city is to get. The actual amount allowed is usually considerably below the budget requests.

The past several days were spent by the finance committee of council preparing the budget for consideration by council last night. In preparing the budget estimated receipts from the various sources are taken into consideration.

Estimated receipts for 1929, aside from property taxes, were given by the committee as $304,235.00. This includes $10,000 from the city hospital $20,000 in the garbage collection department, $17,000 in fines and costs, $2,000 from the gasoline tax and $27,000 from the automobile license tax.

This Year's Total

The receipts from these sources for this year, estimated by the finance committee of council last year, total $90,515. The estimated receipts are included in the operating expenses previously given for the budget.

Unconfirmed reports were circulated in Moscow and Berlin that the Krassin has picked up the six members of the Noble expedition who were en route to the Arctic.

Seven members of the expedition, who were saved from ice floes, are on board the Russian ice breaker Krassin.

Captain Boris Ivanov, engineer, and his Dutch companion, Van Dongen, who lost their way while on a rescue mission on the coast of North East land, have been saved by airmen and turned to King's bay.

Uncounted reports were circulated in Moscow and Berlin that the Krassin is en route to the Arctic.

In winding up his affairs in the Department of Commerce, Hoover brought to a close a service of seven years and four months as a member of the Harding and Coolidge cabinets. He took office on March 5, 1921, and served as secretary ever since. His associates and the department employees planned a great send off when he retires at 7:30 o'clock tonight for the winter.

Washington, July 14—Herbert Hoover wound up his career as a cabinet officer today prior to leaving tonight on a swing across the country to formally notified of his nomination for the presidency at his old home, Palo Alto, Cal.

In his last hours in the capital, Hoover put the finishing touches on his national organization here. He was said to have agreed with his lieutenants that "three campaigns in one" must be conducted to insure a Republican victory in November.

As outlined by his Hoover leader, the G. O. P. realizes that the major battle must be fought in the East to hold in line the nominally Republican Atlantic seaboard states.

Alfred from $87,210.50 required for interest on bonds, $132,047.74 will be needed for the retirement of bonds outside the 15 mill levy and $135,460 for the retirement of special assessment funds. Because of heavy losses made so far back as 1915 coming due this year, the amount needed for this purpose is greater than for the past several years.

This was the first time the governor had struck out straight from the shoulder at his political foes since he was nominated for the presidency by the Democratic party.

Although Maschke has not come out with an open declaration, it is apparent that the Cleveland organization is backing Begg. Maschke's reason for silence at present is believed by close friends to be due to his interest in the candidacy of Theodore E. Burton for U. S. Senator. Maschke, it is understood, does not wish to embarrass any of the downtown group backing Cooper and Attorney General E. C. Turner who might choose to favor Burton.

Albany, N. Y., July 14—Governor Al Smith today bitterly denounced William Allen White, Kansas editor, and the Rev. O. R. Miller of Albany, superintendent of the N. Y. State Civic League and editor of the "Reform Bulletin" for picturing him as a friend of the saloon.

General Emilio Nobile is recovering from illness on board the supply ship Citta di Milano.

Three Missing After Water Floods Underground Canal in Chicago

Chicago, July 14—More than a hundred firemen and police officers worked today to locate three of 37 men who were trapped in a 32-foot sewer tunnel by a sudden flood of water.

Two months ago a canal damaged the sewer. The men were working in three shifts to clean out the debris and to reinforce the sewer with concrete from within.

Midnight shift had just gone on duty, according to reports to police, when Steve Kaha, foreman, sent a messenger to the pumping station to have some water turned into the sewer.

The pumping station attended turned on the tap, but through some misunderstanding or because of the high water of the Calumet river, due to rain, a great wall of water swept into the tunnel. The workers fled, but nine were trapped.

Carl Cheever, one of the workers returned to the flooded tunnel and led seven of the men to safety. He returned to seek the other two, still missing, and failed to come back himself.

HOT WEATHER FAILS TO FOLLOW STORMS

Week-End for Marion Promises To Be Cool and Fair

Contrary to weather bureau predictions for "another sizzling weekend" the temperature here is moderate and the weather cool. Today's weather report predicted "fair and continued cool weather" tonight and "fair weather and slowly rising temperature" for Sunday.

At noon today the mercury stood at 86, the highest point reached yesterday. The temperature dropped to 87 last night, after 2.2 inches of rain had fallen during the day.

A year ago yesterday Marion residents were suffering from a torrid wave which brought a 94 degree temperature. The drop was to 70 degrees at night.

NATIONAL EMBLEM

With a couple of national holidays just passed we saw the American flag displayed in numerous ways, correct and otherwise. I thought I knew something about how the flag should be displayed and the proper gesture in honoring the emblem. In fact, I was bordering on the uppish stage in regard to it on the subject, until I was asked recently if I knew how a flag should be displayed over the street. My glib answer was that I let a thin dime you would be, that it should hang with the field to the upper left hand corner. Well, here's the correct dope on it: When displayed over the middle of the street the flag should be suspended vertically with the union to the north in an east and west street or to the east in a north and south street. If you can get hold of an authentic code of the flag take a little time to peruse it and I'll venture to guess that you'll read it through before you lay it down. It's interesting as well as enlightening. Here are some of the many things to be found in it:

"When the flag is displayed in a manner other than being flown from a staff, it should be displayed flat, whether in doors or out. When displayed either horizontally or vertically against a wall, the union should be uppermost and to the flag's own right, and the observer's left. When fastened, rosettes or bunting are desired, hunting of blue and red should be used, but never the flag."

"When used on a speaker's platform the flag, if displayed flat, should be displayed above and behind the speaker. If hung from a staff it should be in the position of honor at the speaker's right. It should never be used to cover the speaker's desk or to drape over the front of the platform."

"When the flag is in such condition that it is no longer a fitting emblem for display, it should not be cast aside or used in any way that might be viewed as disrespectful to the national colors, but should be destroyed in a whole privately, preferably by burning or by some other method in harmony with the reverence and respect we owe to the emblem representing our country."

"THE CONSTANT FLAME"

CHAPTER FIVE

Raggedy let a walk. He began to run, then he stopped, his head back and eyes down his nose, his hands clasped and standing like a man who had just died.

The dog below that Raggedy was. A gorgous thoroughbred, who gave her all his beauty, leaved her with his valiant heart. Just a person she was; just a dog of no special breed.

He turned and ran out of a yard with his nose down, muscles quivering and began popping. Raggedy whirled under his wiry coat. It is said the dog has been born with a single lock. And turned his head away from his ancestor, the wolf, but one who has seen him about to spring into battle believes that.

Raggedy sprang—reached for the snarl that Emily shook with complete fury. "Chew dog!" So that's how you feel. Well that's right old fellow—he exclusive. He'd carry a gunned off. He rolled over in the dust two or three times and raced on up the hill, tail down, yelping, while the small dog scuttled to cover.

Raggedy came back to Emily, stepped high though a line of red tricked across his paw. She knelt down on the curb. Raggedy also saw and puppy though he was, crunched for an instant against his strong neck.

"All for that wretched little mongrel," Raggedy. "He's the same kind. Let her see, now—"

It seemed terrible that his beautiful body should be injured. She gathered him up and tried to carry him but he squirmed out of her arms and went limping along.

When they came to Frances Halden's shop she took him inside and asked for a bandage. "All for a rascous little cur, it was," she explained. "He saved it from a big dog and now he's hurt."

"You don't have him lay down on the job, my dog?"

"It wasn't his fight."

"Ah, wrong there. It's the nature of the thoroughbred, you see, to protect what is weaker than itself. That is the job laid upon intelligent force and heart higher than the ordinary by the Creator of those. It is the law of compensation which always is just."

"You mean—why—oh, really? Is that what the aristocrat is then? The one who protects others not so strong as himself?"

Mrs. Halden turned out the gas under a vat, wiped her stained hands on stained apron, thoughtfully lit a cigarette and sat down to talk with questions. Her clear, analytical viewpoint and her rare capacity for encouraging thought were developing in the girl the thing toward which education tends—the ability to us her mind.

"What?" she began, "is the aristocrat? You see a person who possesses wealth and place and power, one who controls the destiny of others—and you was perfectly right."

"One thing more. What did Mrs. Ingoldsby mean by her dying words?"

"They were, of course, an accusation against her husband."

"Dear me, Poirot," I said with a smile. "I think you have explained everything. I am glad it has all ended so happily. Even John and his wife are reconciled."

"Thanks to me."

"How do you mean—thanks to you?"

"My dear friends, do you not realize that it was simply and solely the trial which has brought them together again? That John Cavendish still loves his wife. I was convinced. Also, that she was equally in love with him. But they had drifted very far apart. It all arose from a misunderstanding."

"She married him without love. He knew it. He is a sensitive man in his way, he would not force himself upon her if she did not want him. And, as he withdrew, her love awoke. But they're both unusually proud, and their pride held them inexorably apart."

"He drifted into an entanglement with Mrs. Runkles, and she deliberately cultivated the friendship of Dr. Bannister. Do you remember the day of John Cavendish's arrest, when you found me deliberating over a big decision?"

"Yes, I quite understand your distress."

"Pardon me, mon ami, but you did not understand it in the least. I was trying to decide whether or not I would clear John Cavendish at once. I could have cleared him—though it might have meant a failure to convict the real criminals. They were entirely in the dark as to my real attitude up to the very last moment—which partly accounts for my success."

"Do you mean that you could have saved John Cavendish from being brought to trial?"

"Yes, my friend. But I eventually decided in favor of a woman's happiness. Nothing but the great danger through which they have passed could have brought these two proud souls together again."

I looked at Poirot in silent amazement. The colossal cheek of the little man! Who on earth but Poirot would have thought of a trial for murder as a restorer of conjugal happiness!

"I perceive your thoughts, mon ami," said Poirot, smiling at me. "No one but Hercule Poirot would have attempted such a thing! And you are wrong in condemning it. The happiness of one man and one woman is the greatest thing in all the world."

His words took me back to earlier events. I remembered Mary as she lay white and exhausted on the sofa, listening, listening. There had come the sound of the bell below. She had started up. I had opened the door, and meeting her agonized eyes had nodded gently. "Yes, madame," he said, "I have brought him back to you." He had stood aside, and as I went out I had seen the look in Mary's eyes, as John Cavendish had caught his wife in his arms.

"Perhaps you are right, Poirot," I said gently. "Yes, it is the greatest thing in the world."

Suddenly, there was a tap at the door, and Cynthia peeped in.

"Come in," I said, springing up. She came in, but did not sit down. "I only wanted to tell you something."

"Yes?" Cynthia fidgeted with a little tassel for some moments, then suddenly exclaimed: "You dear!" kissed first me and then Poirot, and rushed out of the room again.

"What on earth does this mean?" I asked, surprised.

It was very nice to be kissed by Cynthia, but the politeness of the salute rather impaired the pleasure.

"It means that she has discovered Monsieur Lawrence does not dislike her as much as she thought," replied Poirot philosophically.

"But—"

"Here he is."

Lawrence at that moment passed the door.

"Eh! Monsieur Lawrence," called Poirot. "We must congratulate you, it is not so?"

Lawrence blushed, and then smiled awkwardly. A man in love is a sorry spectacle. Now Cynthia had looked charming.

"I sighed.

"What is it, such said?"

"Nothing," I said easily. "They are two delightful women."

"And neither of them is for you," added Poirot. "Never mind, they are two delightful women, who hardly need me."

"Very true."

"Well, I must say, they are two delightful women."

Works of Anton Gropotovich Rubinstein will be featured in the "Works of Great Composers" to be heard at 8 o'clock, through stations associated with the National Broadcasting System.

The National Concert orchestra opens the program with selections from Rubinstein's opera, "Fernando," characterized by splashes of Oriental color so typical of certain aspects of Kashan life. Genia Finnerova, mezzo soprano, and Irving Jackson, baritone, will sing a number of the composer's songs, most of which derive their inspiration from his native land. The orchestra will also play the dance and ballet from "Der Damon."

START LOCAL SHOP AFTER WORLD WAR

Add Branch of Outdoor Advertising to Business in 1924

FRED BERG IS OWNER

Has Agency for Neon Sign;
Newest Idea in Electric
Display

The Berg-Bland Co. sign dates back to the end of the World war. It was just about nine years ago when Fred Berg started his commercial sign shop, which was then located on Court at facing the Courthouse.

In 1924 an additional branch of the business was taken on, that of outdoor advertising which included outdoor billboard and electric sign work. This with the commercial work such as window cards and sale cards, assisted in supplying an ever growing demand for commercial and display art work.

It has been the desire and the accomplishment of Fred Berg to keep informed on the very latest developments and to keep in step with the fast changing ideas in the commercial art fields. Much of the success of the splendid business the Berg-Bland Co. has built up has been due to the progressiveness of Fred Berg, its owner and head.

Mr. Berg claims the newest idea in electric signs is the new Neon sign for which he has the local agency. This sign is ten times as effective as the usual electric sign. By effectiveness is meant that it is ten times as likely to be seen because of the peculiar light it gives off. The maintenance cost is a big feature of this new sign. It is claimed the sign requires only one-tenth as much electricity to operate it as does the usual sign. The Neon gas which is forced into a vacuum tube gives off a very bright and penetrating, yet cold light. This Neon tube has no filaments to burn out and with its low operating cost is cheaper in the long run for the progressive concern, than the old fashioned electric sign.

The Berg-Bland Co. also have a silk screen process for making signs which facilitates the making of great quantities of signs very quickly and reasonably. As many as 10,000 painted signs can be made in almost the same space of time that the ordinary sign will be painted; yet these silk screen signs would be lasting and absolutely water-proof.

The Berg-Bland Co. has facilities for handling any sized commercial art job, whether it be large or small. It guarantees good service and good work. The phone number is 2847, and the office is located at 147 North Main st.

HIGH MARK REACHED BY BANK CLEARINGS

Total of $829,057.24 Reported for Past Week in City

Bank clearings for the week closing Thursday night, reached the highest point of the year when a total of $829,057.24 was reported by the Marion County bank. The amount is an advance of approximately $200,000 over the preceding week when the total was reported as $629,057.24.

Each day during the week found the clearings well over the $100,000 mark, the lowest point reached during the week, was on Monday when the clearings were reported to be $110,455. While clearings usually show an advance as the winter and summer seasons become established, the advance within that past two weeks, has been unusually marked, bankers say.

Late spring and early fall are usually accompanied by light clearings because of the time of the season. Buying, usually light at these seasons, becomes heavier as the season becomes more advanced. Clearings of $100,000 a day show satisfactory business conditions, bankers say.

Spring wire racks have been invented on which sports' hobby can be stretched and dried quickly.

Heating Problem Is Solved By Dreher Supply Co., Here

Latest types of furnace heating are handled by the Dreher Supply Co. of 147 North Main st., which is the local agency for the American Radiator Co.

According to the local company heating plants are divided into three types commonly known as hot air, steam and hot water heating.

None of these systems were used by the forefathers in this country. The open fire place was the only method of heating they knew. And although this method was very inefficient as compared to modern standards, for 90 per cent of the heat from the burning wood went up the chimney, nevertheless the fuel supply was abundant, the houses were small, and the quaint and picturesque fireplace seemed quite satisfactory.

But as United States developed and the need for greater fuel conservation became manifest, the attention of scientific men was directed to the study of more efficient heating methods. The brilliant Benjamin Franklin conceived the stove, which could be placed in the middle of the room to radiate heat in all directions. He equipped the stove with dampers to regulate combustion, and claimed for it that it warmed his room twice as well as the open fire, using one-fourth the amount of fuel.

Yet the stove could heat but one room at a time, and how to distribute the heat from one fire through a series of rooms remained a problem.

The Hot Air Furnace

It was learned that by placing a jacket around the stove, a stream of warm air arose out of the enclosed area. The space surrounding the jacketed stove was not so intensely hot as before, but the stream of heated air continued its flow upward and outward, distributing its warmth over a much wider area. This was the beginning of the hot air furnace system of heating. The furnace was placed in the cellar and the heated air rose and flowed throughout the home. Whereas the stove radiated intense heat in one room only, the furnace distributed the heat more evenly through a series of rooms.

It was indeed a great forward step, and tremendously important for the comfort and convenience of home owners.

Yet the hot air furnace system had its disadvantages. The cold air coming in around windows or through cracks in the windward side of a house, would push the heated air back, with the result that some of the rooms remained cold on raw windy days. Dust from the cellar was carried upstairs by the circulating air. And one other serious limitation was the fact that in

Hot Water Heating

In a hot water system, water instead of steam is the heat carrying medium. When the water and the boiler is heated it rises, in accordance with the law of gravity, flowing through the radiators upstairs. And as it gives off its heat to the radiators, it becomes heavier and descends through the return pipes to the boiler where it is re-heated. The process continues.

A hot water system is especially desirable in communities where the temperature is consistently low during the winter season, for the heat stored up in the water keeps the home warm for several hours even though the fire is allowed to die down or go out. And this system is highly economical in operation, as the heated water can be made to circulate at varying temperatures to meet weather conditions.

Where outside temperatures fluctuate rapidly, as in temperate climates, steam heating is especially desirable because of its quick heating response to sudden demands.

NEW BOARDS

Myrin-Lorain and Troy Groups Added to Association.

Columbus, 14—Two new real estate boards have just been added to the Ohio association of real estate boards, according to Ray Hofford, secretary.

Thirty-five boards are now affiliated with the organization.

The Myrin-Lorain real estate board, with headquarters at Elyria, was organized on June 4th with 35 active and 35 associate members. On June 20, at luncheon meeting at the Hotel Lorain, the Miami county real estate board was formed.

Washington, July 14.—The cost of construction increased slightly during June, according to statistics just compiled by the Associated General Contractors of America. The rise, which is the first to be recorded since September, 1927, interrupts the movement toward lower levels which has prevailed during recent months.

Despite the increase, the cost average remains below the position it occupied one year ago. It is slightly above the mark recorded for June, 1926.

The average of construction costs for the first six months of the current year was appreciably lower than the corresponding figure for the first half of 1927.

A marked feature of the trend of costs this year is found in the comparatively small amount of fluctuation. Only two changes have been noted since last November, one being a decline in March and the other being the increase shown last month. At no time since the early part of 1925 has this degree of stability been witnessed.

The June increase is attributed to a rise in the average of costs of basic construction materials. This movement followed a series of decreases which combined to form a definite downward trend that began last September.

The average of wages paid in the major construction centers of the country showed a decline during June, this being the first change since January of this year and the second since February, 1927. The decline was not sufficient, however, to counterbalance the increase in the cost of materials.

Tunney Suffering from Too Much Dempsey,
Writer Says

BY DAVID A. WALSH

SPECULATOR, N. Y., July 14.—There seemed to be only two reactions world recording today in connection with the impending epic for heavyweight supremacy and one of them has to do with the fact that Gene Tunney appears to be what is politely known as a sucker for a right hand punch. The other acknowledges the admitted fact that, if Tom Heeney isn't a right hand puncher of some mean degree, he is nothing at all and maybe much less.

The writer regrets exceedingly that he is forced to use a tap room term like sucker in connection with the heavyweight champion. Perhaps it would be much nicer to say that he appears very vulnerable in this respect, for I know he would like that expression even if he didn't consider it accurate in its application. Just how he could apply it otherwise, after being slaughtered with right hands during recent training bouts, is something that may be explained in detail but not by my handy pocket manual.

OPERAHND, I would say that Tunney is suffering from the reaction of too much Dempsey during recent years. Since early in 1926, all of his boxing, his preparations, his thoughts have been confined to the matter of dealing with one of the great left hand punchers of the ages. He never had to feel a qualm about Dempsey's right; it was and is just a hand he uses for keeping his arm and elbow contented and at ease.

Tunney is an adaptable soul but this system of forever circling to his left to keep beyond the range of an opponent's left hook may have taken root in his subconscious mind. Anyhow, there seemed to be no other explanation available for the fact that Billy Vlachos and Marcel Massy, a couple of bright young men but hardly champions even in prospect, can't seem to make Tunney with the right. They have been telegraphing the punch, more or less, too.

THE fallacy of passing final judgment on a fighter on training camp performances, especially with the fight 12 days away, has been proved before. What Tunney does and has done to him with the big gloves are things that may never happen when he gets in there with Heeney and I grant that much of his exhibition stuff here may be thrown out. But not all of it.

I wouldn't, for example, recommend we forget that Tunney is not

Club Sending Five To Olympics

MARION STAR SPORTS

Protest Main Topic of Conversation with American Team

on Ship

Aboard the S. S. President Roosevelt, via Italy, July 14.—The gesture of protest made by the New York Athletic Club against some of the official selections of the Olympic committee, was the main topic of conversation today among the members of the American team on shipboard.

Between workouts, the athletes pondered deeply on the fact that the club was sending five men across at its own expense because the officials feel those men should have been selected in various events.

Three of these men, Matt McGrath, veteran hammer thrower, Roland Locke, former University of Nebraska star, and Wenceslao Bokkin, star hurdler from Alabama, are sailing from New York today on the S. S. Volendam. The other two, North Jackson, a wrestler, and Paul Elkins, Indiana decathlon star, sail on the Berengaria Sunday.

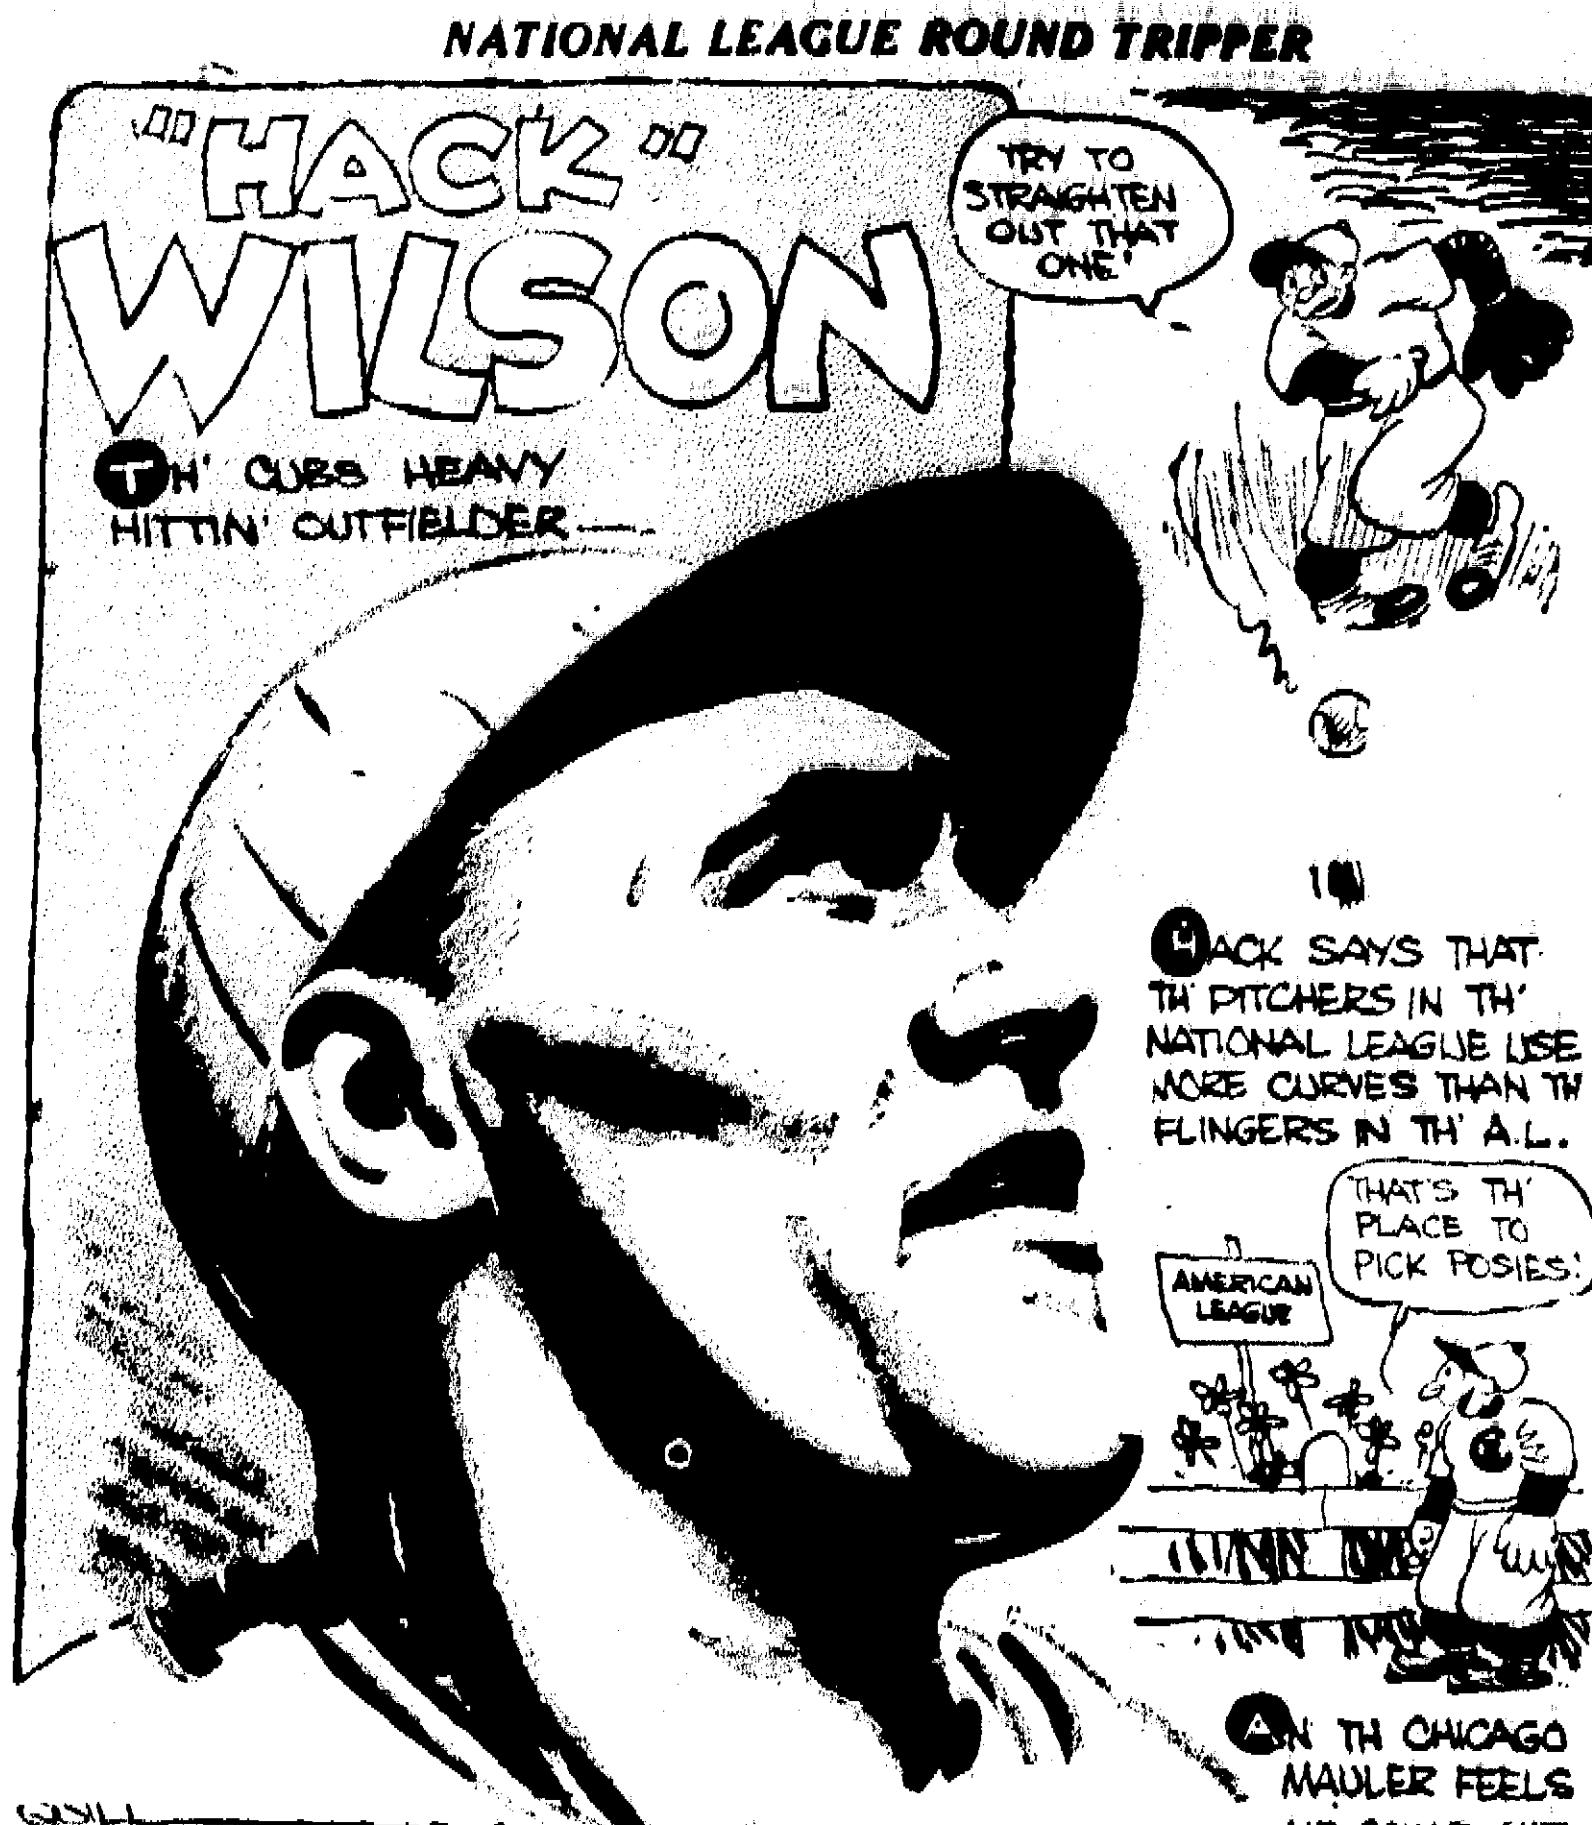

The officials of the New York A. C. feel that these men, although they failed to qualify for various reasons, are entitled to be on the Olympic team. Major General Douglas MacArthur, Olympic chairman, indicated in a statement yesterday, that he would give an open ear to any protests.

LOUGHREN IS FAVORITE IN MATCH WITH LATZO

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 14.—Tommy Loughran, light heavyweight champion, ruled a 5 to 4 favorite today to defeat Peter Latzo in their 10 round bout here next Monday despite the fact that thousands of Latzo's friends in the anthracite regions are backing the former Scranton miner to the hilt.

Boxing as well as one might reason to expect; nor should the fact be overlooked that he doesn't seem to be punching as cleanly as he did in the two Dempsey fights.

Those are the only faults that can be found with the champion's showing here this week but either or both, if carried into the Heeney fight, might prove to be very serious faults. For he won't be meeting a paid sparring partner that night nor a man who is not supposed to follow up any advantage too enthusiastically.

TH FOUR-PLY APPLE KNOCKER TIED WITH CY WILLIAMS, OF TH PHILLIES, FOR HOME RUN HONORS IN TH NATIONAL LAST YEAR AN' IS TRYIN' FOR A ROUND TRIP SOCK EVERY TIME HE GOES TO TH PLATE

BY KING Features Syndicate, Inc.
Great Britain rights reserved.

BY QUIN HALL

Just how much does the pitching encountered in the American league and the National league affect the ability of the batters to smash the onion for the circuit?

Hack Wilson, famous outfielder of the Chicago Cubs and up among the leaders in the older loop, when it comes to cracking home-run wallop, feels confident that he could fatten his total by at least twenty more round-trip smacks per season if he were transplanted into the junior circuit or was hitting against American league pitching.

The shortening of outfields in various parks through—sic—in some cases—the alleged need of extra seating capacity and the use of a livelier ball, has greatly enhanced the chances of home run hitters since the days when Frank Baker, of the Athletics, was considered quite a cut-up in the round-tripper's ranks with a dozen or so circuit drives for the season.

But does the twirling served up in the American league favor the full-timers more than the pitching in the National league? Hack Wilson figures that it does, in the older loop have to pick out their few home-run wallop from an assortment of hooks.

Hack accuses the pitchers who oppose the Cubs with trying to slide sly curves off his bat instead of merely trying to toss the ball past him—and it's all very disconcerting. Especially to a batter like the Chicago mauler who goes up to the plate with only one thought in mind—that thought being to await the leather for a round trip.

Clicking curved balls usually results in the ball finishing a trip in the hands of an outfielder, whereas connecting with a speedy ball usually means socking it out of the ball park or into the bleachers.

Despite the fact that Wilson, who, by the way, is a former New York Giant, deplores the fact that he has to hit against hooked pitching while Ruth and the other American league swat kings are favored with speed, the Chicago fence-buster will probably continue to smash out the circuit slams and stands a good chance of bettering his last year's mark when he tethers with Cy Williams, of Philadelphia, for home run honors with a total of 30.

He sure enjoys hitting the round-trippers.

GOSSOON WINS

Yacht Likely To Be Chosen To Enter Rochester Races

Put-in-Bay, July 14.—By reason of her victory over Lightning, Gossoon, of the Bay View Yacht club, of Detroit, in the thirty-fifth annual interclubs regatta, today stood the best chances of being chosen to enter the Richardson cup races at Rochester, N. Y., next month.

The Gossoon passed over the line in the final class R envoys event Friday, fully two minutes ahead of the Lightning, also of Detroit, skippered by M. R. Runyan.

The man who tackles a business for which he is not fitted is apt to find it more troublesome and vexatious than profitable.

Hope is all right when it forms a partnership with Hustle.

Whyall Says Council Has Nothing to Do With Where New Water Main Is Built

Statement Made After Body Refuses To Sanction Plan of Using Silver st.; Fire Chief McFarland Endorses Church st. for Line

After bickering at three sessions of council for sanction of the construction of a 20-inch water main under Silver st., George Whyall, general manager of the Marion Water Co., last night informed city council members that that this reason would be willing to operate to a reasonable extent.

May Use Another Route

As a result of the meeting last night, it is possible some other street will be selected as the route for the new 20-inch main. Church st. was mentioned as the more logical route for the main, since the purpose of its construction is to provide additional water for the eastern and southern parts of the city. The building of the main on Church st. was endorsed by Fire Chief McFarland.

"I realize the property owners on Silver st. have been sorely taxed for their paving," Mr. Whyall said in discussing the building of the main on this street, "and can appreciate their attitude, but the line must be built in order to comply with the provisions of the contract." A suggestion that the line be built south on Kenton ave., to connect with a 16-inch main at Daniels and Copley sts., did not meet with the approval of the fire chief, who said to build the line in this way, would not comply with the purpose of the project.

Says Line Is Necessary

"The building of the line," he was explained by the fire chief, "is one of the provisions required by the National Board of Fire Underwriters, if Marion is to secure a lower insurance rate. At the time the survey of the city was made by the underwriters in 1921 when a lower insurance rate was being sought, the building of a 20 inch main in order to provide additional water for the eastern and southern part of the city was one of the requirements of the board, and until this was done, a lower rate would be impossible."

The chief also pointed out that the increase in the water rates and the installation of larger fire hydrants last year was provided for in the franchise with the company for but one purpose and that was the building of the new 20-inch main. The chief also pointed out that the increase in the water rates and the installation of larger fire hydrants last year was provided for in the franchise with the company for but one purpose and that was the building of the new 20-inch main.

A plan of securing easements through the rear lots on Silver st., was not regarded as logical by Mr. Whyall.

Neither was the building of the line under the sidewalk on the south side of Silver st. And to build it between the sidewalk and curb on either side of the street would be impossible because of the gas lines and the telephone cables, he said.

A committee consisting of the water work committee of council, the fire chief and City Solicitor George Geran were appointed by President Murphy to meet with Mr. Whyall to investigate the feasibility of using some other street for the line.

that was the building of the new 20-inch main. The line would not necessarily have to be built on Silver st., the chief said. In fact it would be of greater advantage if it could be built in some other part of town. Church st., because of the more or less bad condition of the paving, was suggested as the most logical route.

Line Provided for in Contract

Unless this line is built, the chief declared, the people in the city will have paid and will continue to pay thousands of dollars of unnecessary water rates. One of the provisions of the higher rates, was that the company would provide additional fire protection and additional water for industrial development, by the construction of this line. The building of the main on Church st. was endorsed by Fire Chief McFarland. "I realize the property owners on Silver st. have been sorely taxed for their paving," Mr. Whyall said in discussing the building of the main on this street, "and can appreciate their attitude, but the line must be built in order to comply with the provisions of the contract." ## Jesus The Burden Bearer

A SERMONETTE
BY THE REV. H. E. WILLIAMSON
Pastor, Oakland Evangelical Church

The psalmist wrote "Cast thy burden upon the Lord and He shall sustain thee." Jesus said, "Come unto me, all ye that are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

How wonderful to know that we burdened mortals can bring every burden to Jesus and find rest! He knows us as no one does. He can enter into the deepest needs of our lives.

What are some of the burdens we may bring to Him?

First: Our burden of sin. All from Adam to present man, have felt the burden of sin and guilt. Men in every walk of life, high and low, rich and poor, learned and ignorant, "all have sinned and come short of the glory of God." Men have committed all sorts of sins against God, but no matter what their sin is or how enslaved men may be by sinful passions and lusts, Jesus can remove the burden of sin now. "For where sin abounded grace does now much more abound." "Cast thy burden of sin upon the Lord; He will set you free. There are no 'hopeless cases' where Jesus is concerned.

Second: Our burden of sorrow. Sorrow is our common lot here. The death angel knocks at every door and calls our dear ones away. Sometimes by sickness, sometimes by accident and sometimes by the hand of a criminal. Sorrow often comes like a lightning stroke. We seem unprepared to face it. Unexplainable providences bring heart-crushing sorrows to our hearts but Jesus offers to bear our burden of sorrow for "He is a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief." Come, sorrowing one, bethel up alone to the great loving heart of Jesus, yield fully to His sweet will and He will heal your broken heart and bind up all your wounds." "Cast thy burden of sorrow upon the Lord and He shall sustain thee." "Earth has no sorrow that Heaven cannot heal."

Third: Our burden of trouble. The best of people have troubles. They see a part of our earthly life. Job, the patient man of God, had them. No one is exempt. We sometimes bring trouble upon ourselves and others by our sins. They sometimes come by the sins of others. Whatever the source or cause, Jesus will help us in our troubles. Give him a chance.

SMITH AND HOOVER

New York Governor Represents
Old Tammany Rule, State
Platform Alleges

Albany, N. Y., July 14.—Governor Al Smith and Tammany hall were assailed in a platform which was scheduled to be adopted here today at the unofficial state convention of the Socialist party.

Algeron Lee, of New York, the Socialist leader, also took a swing at Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential candidate. In his "keynote" speech to the convention, Lee charged that Hoover employed "discredited members of the Ohio gang" in his pre-election campaign.

McAllister Coleman or Samuel Beersley of New York is expected to be nominated as the Socialist candidate for governor. Selection of the ticket will not be made, however, until Sunday afternoon.

The platform has this to say about Governor Smith and Tammany hall:

"The history of Tammany is one of the most shocking, one of the most shameful in the annals of American gang politics. Today, under new leadership, Tammany hall has sought to assume a more decent outward aspect, to present a clean front to the public, to announce that it is a 'new' Tammany and to elect one of its members as president of the United States."

"That Tammany at heart is, however, exactly what it has been is manifest to anyone who cares to look beneath the surface. Tammany leaders now wear dress suits and ride in private cars and yachts of men of enormous wealth who have waxed fat on public contracts and public needs but the essence of their rule is precisely what it always has been. New York street cleaning scandals are the fruits of the white washed Tammany."

OUTPUT AHEAD

Steel Business for First Six Months
Surpasses Two Previous Years.

The current business year at the halfway mark has steered a middle course between the predictions of pessimists who feared a serious depression and those of the optimist who looked for record prosperity, according to the monthly review of economic conditions by the National City bank of New York.

During the first six months, steel output has surpassed that of the two previous years; building operations have exceeded the first half of 1927 and the automobile industry has staged a satisfactory comeback, all implying general industrial activity. The review points out "despite the good showing in steel, automobiles, and construction work, there is undeniable evidence that the total volume of business is not quite up to that of the first six months of last year."

SIX OF NOBLE SURVIVORS PICKED UP, UNCONFIRMED DISPATCH SAYS

The two men were rescued by the Swedish plane Upland and the Finnish plane L. 10. They had been obviously sighted by the Soviet ice breaker Krasnoye, which was enroute to the rescue of the five men in the "red test" group.

RADIO DIRECTIONS

The Krassina raised the position on Lake Island where the men were selected.

The planes, manned by officers of the relief group commanded by the Swedish aviator for long distance to be picked up, were taken to Kings bay.

The men were in a deplorable physical condition. They were ragged, dirty and starving, but overjoyed at their rescue. Some sailing the Krassina, they had known there was close land, and had been scanning the sky for six days of rescue craft.

The men told the rescuers that

During the winter, the Danish engineer, who originally was the third member of their party, was at Cape Horn, on the coast of North Eastland. He had sailed before day started across the ice to safety to the South continent near Cape Horn, and had been adrift for 10 days.

After leaving New York last night, the two men found the sea rough and choppy for 30 days; they were practically without food. Finally, they had to kill one of the four fatted canine companions and eat them.

Mr. Conley said the body might be held in New York City for two or three days pending completion of plans for taking it to Mexico City. He said he had as strenuous from Washington that the United States government would co-operate in transportation of the body.

Meanwhile U. S. army officials and police endeavored to ascertain the cause of the crash of his plane, a sister ship to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's Spirit of St. Louis, in a wilderness of woods and bogs eight miles from Chatsworth, N. J. Thursday night shortly after he had hopped off from Roosevelt Field, Long Island, on an attempted non-stop flight to Mexico City.

Mrs. L. Rodriguez, secretary of the Mexican government in the United States, and A. N. Martinez, M. Gonzalez and J. Lopez of the Mexican consul general's office consulted with the undertaker. Mr. Conley said the body might be held in New York City for two or three days pending completion of plans for taking it to Mexico City. We refuse to take any stock in the story that former Governor Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, is being urged to head a third party. We simply can not vision Giff. having to be urged to head any opposition movement.

The Palmolive soap people and the Colgate perfume people have consolidated their interests, which puts the combination in position to supply both those who use soap and those who do not.

The North Platte, Nebraska, restaurant man who refused to cash a check for four dollars for Colonel Lindbergh can hardly be blamed. A four-dollar check in connection with the name of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh would look like a fraud on its face.

A Paris cabin announces that the divorce mill quis in progress over there doesn't look to any action which will invalidate divorce granted on the "while-you-wait" plan to Americans, and a lot of those who have "waited" in Paris will now breathe freely once more.

Lord Byng, of Vimy, whose appointment as commissioner of the London metropolitan police force has been approved by the house of commons, has this among other recommendations; he has the outspoken opposition of the British communists, to say nothing of that of their quarters, the reds of soviet Russia.

The Method Is Questionable.

There can be little doubt but what the St. Charles, a 125-room Milwaukee hotel, merited the padlocking which has been adjudged against it. Unquestionably, it was a nuisance within the meaning of the Volstead law, and the court could not well have done other than order the padlocking of the entire hotel, as it did, on the showing made by two dry undercover men who became guests of the hotel for three months to make a case against its proprietor.

Both told how they had occupied several different rooms in the hotelery, of the gin they had purchased from bell boys while residing there, of wild parties with chorus girls, and of hearing boisterous talking and laughing, indicating other drunken orgies in various parts of the hotel.

During their three months' sojourn at the hotel they purchased scores of bottles of liquor for the consumption of the chorus girls tenants and participated in numerous wild parties, they admitted. The greater part of the liquor, purchased with the government's money, was drunk by chorus girls, according to testimony of the under-cover agents.

It may be necessary to meet fire with fire to beat the devil at his own game. It may be that the end justifies the means, but a story such as this leaves a bad taste in the mouth. It is a matter for regret that the prohibition law can not be enforced without the inauguration of such campaigns to develop crime that crime may be apprehended. And if two enforcement officers give all their time for three months to the padlocking of one hotel, how many officers will it take, and how many years, to make the country dry?

This newspaper is today, as it always has been, in sympathy with the cause of temperance, but it regrets that methods such as employed in this Milwaukee case are deemed necessary to bring about the accomplishment of that cause. Certainly a nuisance so notorious could have been abated without the utilization of the methods employed.

At Times the World's Akin.

Lieutenant Lindberg's estimate of fifteen dead as a result of the loss of the Italia must be cut at least nine, and probably more, as the result of the splendid work of the Russian ice breaker, Krasin, who a day rescued two of the members of the Marconi party of three—Captain Alfredo Mariano and Captain Filippo Zappi—the two members of the crew, who have been in close communication with the outside world ever since the gondola carrying them and General Nobile was torn loose from the dirigible. Lieutenant Alfredo Viglieri, Motor Chief, Captain Caccia, Engineer Filippo Trolani, Radio Operator Giuseppe Bligo and Professor F. Polonowski, the meteorologist—and Captain Rota and Engineer Van Donzen, members of one of the parties lost while hunting for No. 1.

That the 140 members of the Malinovski party were discovered as they were by the Russian aviator, Chuchkovsky, to say nothing of their rescue, was almost miraculous. Considering the exposure and suffering they endured during the forty-five days between the time of their departure from the Nobile party and their rescue, the last thirteen of which they went without food, it is a wonder that either of them survived. And it is a matter for further wonder, and one showing the perversity of fate, that Professor Malinovski, who was a strong, vigorous man and accustomed to the rigors of the North, and as such had been selected as the leader of the party, was the one to suffer accident. He was left behind, at his request and upon his urging, with both legs and one wrist broken, while the other two persevered in their effort to secure aid for the party they had left on the ice field, only to be marooned on a small field of floating ice and suffer incomprehensible tortures until their rescue was accomplished through the daring and courage of the Russian aviator. The story of how he fought the elements and defied the fogs to carry back word of his discovery to the ice-breaker is an epic.

The captain of the Krassin reports that another party has been sighted in the vicinity of the point at which the Italia is believed to have gone down. Let us hope that this report is true. Let us hope that the Krassin will continue its good work and that others will be rescued.

But no matter what the outcome of further relief efforts, the world must pay tribute to the Krasin and the fliers who have used it as a base have already done. The awful story of the destruction of the Italia and its aftermath of horror would be incomplete without tribute to the spirit of humanity which the commander of the Krassin and his men have shown. The Russians have surprised the world by the enthusiasm with which they have entered into this work of rescue. They have overcome difficulties which were deemed insurmountable. It goes to show that there are times when all the world is akin, and that the call of humanity appeals alike to individual courage and daring, regardless of the race or condition of those by whom the call is heard.

The interest taken in the Farmer-Labor party movement may be appreciated when it is pointed out that Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska, was nominated for its candidate for the presidency when, on the third ballot, he received the votes of sixteen of the thirty delegates present.

Bessie Taylor, an English youth of twenty, who was said to have held out that American justice is slow, was arrested in Philadelphia and sentenced from two to ten years in prison for stealing an automobile. He should have known better than to pull off anything about showiness in Philadelphia. That's the one subject on which the City of Brotherly Love is sensitive.

Flying 1,300 miles between 3:23 a. m. and 8:15 a. m., Thursday, Lieutenant A. W. Gordon and Chief Bontowain E. C. Bleher, in a United States seaplane, broke four world's records. Here's a case where the early birds capped out the records.

Dougherty, the one-armed and legless flier crashed again in an attempt to take off for a flight to Rome. His luck seems to pursue him, but even a man without legs and possessed of only one arm should be able to appreciate the fact that it's better to smash up a plane a bit on land than to have it crash in the middle of the Atlantic ocean.

Held up in the Jewelers' building in Los Angeles by a young man with a gun, a diamond salesmen was robbed of $100,000 worth of sunset stones. Sooner or later, the diamond salesmen are going to learn that crime is in the saddle in this country, and guard their wares accordingly.

John Henry Mears and Charles G. D. Collie year reached Tokyo in time to sail on the Empress of Russia which means that, under ordinary conditions, they will break the record for a trip around the world. But what puzzles us is what it will profit the world to have an hour or two, or even a day or two, knocked off the time necessary to encircle it in the manner in which such globe-encircling stunts are performed.

It may be necessary to meet fire with fire to beat the devil at his own game. It may be that the end justifies the means, but a story such as this leaves a bad taste in the mouth. It is a matter for regret that the prohibition law can not be enforced without the inauguration of such campaigns to develop crime that crime may be apprehended. ## The Inconstant Sun.

BY GARRETT P. SERVINS.
BY INCIDENTS we all are, incidentally, sunshiny; flowers, grass, trees, man—every one—directly dependent upon the radiations of a near neighbor, the sun. It withdraws its rays and all languish, or die.

In the diurnal terms of sunlight and darkness, and a little light to go through, there are periods of variable periods of vital importance to every living thing. There is, for instance, a tiny named "Sunspot period," during which the sunspots themselves are having momentous effects, and not causes. We know not exactly how they are produced, or exactly what they are.

We only know that their appearance connotes more or less variation in electrical and other cognate forces on the earth, which are evidently the source of something still mysterious to our knowledge, that occurs periodically in the sun.

About a, that we can say with confidence is that we are dependent creatures endowed with self-consciousness, is a bird to a little globe, itself an attachment up a relatively little star, which star is a vast source of the energies that nourish and maintain our life, together with all the activities amidst which we live.

The American Association of Variable Star Observers, consisting mostly of amateur astronomers, keeps mighty watch and record of thousands of stars that vary in their radiations. You can find in civilian astronomical periodicals the monthly reports of these watchers, who might mistake for a bookkeeper's columns of figures. To those who have learned to read them these figures tell the story of the multitude of unsteady suns that light and heat the universe. Our sun, there is no exception in its variability. It follows the stellar fashion. It does not allow itself to be hampered in this respect by the fact that it is the "father" of an interesting planetary family, whose millions of living inhabitants, crawling or strutting their brief lives away in its rays, find some of its habits extremely uncomfortable.

But if we look at the worst cases of stellar variability we may heartily congratulate ourselves that our star is so moderate in its variations. There are others that leap and flame and flutter and fade like a conflagration in battle with the firemen. Woe to any world that should find itself an attaché to such a sun as that! There are some which alter the amount of their light and heat to a notable degree every few days, or every few weeks. Many undergo variations perhaps not greater than those of our sun, and in long periods of years. In our case the period is, on the average, about eleven years. Some stars have longer periods than that; but the long periods are often associated with great fluctuations in the degree of variability. There are stars whose radiation is increased 10,000-fold at times, only to sink back again to the former level. Mirra, "The Wonderchild," is an example.

Is there a progression in the degree of stellar variability? Is it like a fatal disease, growing slowly worse with time? Is our star, for instance, only in an early stage of this trouble, and may it sometime come to resemble Mirra in that respect? There are some significant resemblances between the spectra of the spots that form on the sun and the spectrum of Mirra, which might be taken to indicate a lineage of that kind. But these are questions not yet answerable. And as far as they concern the future of the human race they may not appear of much importance to the universe at large.—Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

Some months ago a German chemist was making a chemical analysis of certain insects. The process involved covering them with powdered copper oxide and heating them in platinum crucibles in an atmosphere of carbon dioxide. A little later he was astonished to find that the insects had turned to metal, with all the delicate markings and structures preserved, as though they had been melted in molten lead. The discovery is regarded as of much importance, as it will enable museums to preserve rare specimens indefinitely.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. MCINTYRE.

New York, July 14.—The white slave does not flourish in America as it does in Europe, but its poisonous tentacles reach far beyond. New York is still a "depot" from which girls listed in desultory headlines as "From Home" are shipped to European concentration centers.

The East Side has many agencies under the misused term of "cafés"—not to be confused with constant surveillance. So has the city. The victims are almost invariably poor girls in factories and shops, betrayed into despairing search for companionship.

Once they leave American shores, life for which is to hope. Their usual destination is Buenos Ayres and there is no one ever coming back. It is said that more than 500 from New York and elsewhere have disappeared in this manner.

The formula for collecting what the slaves call "baggage" in New York is poverty breed the "baggage." A young girl struggling tatteredly by the well-dressed strangers invited to a dance hall, movie or cheap hotel.

There is a chivalric attitude, frank, impulsive in a life of drabness. There is a box of candy, then a bit of wearables, and in a few weeks she is visiting the dressers, beauty parlors and dressmaking establishments. She is being groomed for life.

SHORT IN LIGHTS

Traffic Signals Fail To Operate After Rain

Rain leaking into one of the connections at the intersection of Main and Center sts., is thought to have been responsible for a short in the wiring that put the traffic lights out of working order yesterday afternoon. Shortly after 3 o'clock trouble developed in the lights and a few minutes later they went out. Men from the United Electric Co. started checking for the trouble and at about 7 o'clock last night all but the lights at Center and Main were working. An effort to find the trouble is being made by employees of the electric company today.

ALTHOUGH many devices have been invented for getting persons out of bed in the morning, nothing is more effective to accomplish this purpose than the arrival of a circus, according to officials of the John Robinson circus, which is showing in Marion this week.

When the circus train arrived from Huntington, Ind., at the Greenwood st. siding on the Erie at 7 o'clock this morning, there was already a large audience of children and grownups waiting to witness the unloading of the elephants, cages of wild animals and other paraphernalia.

It was expected that the show would arrive earlier and a number of persons are said to have waited at the siding since shortly after 4 o'clock.

Immediately after unloading the show moved out to the Drake show lot where two performances will be given this afternoon and tonight. The first show was scheduled to start at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The night performance will start at 8 o'clock.

The circus will move out tonight for Columbus.
